ABSTRACT

The ninth annual survey by the Office of Communications Services of the National Association of State Universities and Land-Grant Colleges (NASULGC) shows total enrollment at state and land-grant universities dipped from 3,362,846 in 1977 (391 campuses reporting) to 3,231,948 in 1978 (354 campuses reporting), a drop of 4 percent. The Office of Communications Services (OCS) obtained information from 133 of the Association's 142 member institutions. Figures are based on head counts of both full-time and part-time enrollment, and include extension students enrolled in courses for credit. OCS conducted a supplementary survey of extension enrollment for credit, and added these figures to data that members reported to the National Center for Education Statistics for its Higher Education General Information Survey (HEGIS). Statistical data are included in this report. (Author/MSE)

The ninth annual survey by the Office of Communications Services of the National Association of State Universities and Land-Grant Colleges (NASULGC) shows total enrollment at state and land-grant universities dipped from 3,362,846 in 1977 (391 campuses reporting) to 3,231,948 in 1978 (354 campuses reporting), a drop of 4 percent.

The Office of Communications Services (OCS) obtained information from 133 of the Association's 142 member institutions. Figures are based on head counts of both full-time and part-time enrollment, and include extension students enrolled in courses for credit. OCS conducted a supplementary survey of extension enrollment for credit, and added these figures to data which members reported to the National Center for Education Statistics for its Higher Education General Information Survey (HEGIS).

Table 1 below shows total enrollment by level for all NASULGC campuses participating in the fall 1978 survey.

SURVEY HIGHLIGHTS

·At the 257 campuses providing comparable data for 1977 and 1978, enrollment increased from 2,577,372 to 2,582,789. At these same campuses, enrollment of undergraduate and graduate students decreased, while enrollment of unclassified and first-professional students increased.

·The percentages of total 1978 enrollment for each level were the same as last year, with the exception of undergraduates. (The ten campuses of the University of Puerto Rico did not provide information by level. These students and 5,090 extension students for whom data by level was not provided make up the remaining two percent of the total 1978 enrollment.) Undergraduates continued to represent approximately three-fourths (74%) of the total enrollment for the 337 campuses providing figures for fall, 1978. There were 2,389,936 students reported in this category. Graduate enrollment of 455,648 comprised an additional 14 percent of the total. There were 247,969 unclassified students, accounting for seven percent of the enrollment, and 83,098 first-professional students, making up the remaining three percent of the total enrollment.

·First-time freshmen enrollments reported by 262 campuses totaled 417,942. These students comprised 17.5 percent of the total undergraduate enrollment on these campuses.

·Men accounted for 52.5 percent of the total enrollment for the 353 campuses which participated in the 1978 survey, while women accounted for 47.5 percent. (The University of Guam did not provide information by sex.) There were 1,679,543 men and 1,521,824 women enrolled on the 353 campuses, along with an additional 27,106 extension students who were not categorized by sex. In fall, 1977, women made up 46.5 percent of the total enrollment.

·The percentage of part-time students remained approximately the same as in fall, 1977. There were 881,121 part-time students and 2,320,246 full-time students enrolled on the 353 campuses participating in the 1978 survey. Part-time enrollment represented 27.5 percent of the total, up only two-tenths of a percent from fall, 1977.

·Degree-credit extension enrollment reported by 108 campuses was 120,577, representing 3.7 percent of the total enrollment. This year, enrollment at all levels in extension for credit programs decreased from 1977 figures.

TWO-YEAR COMPARISONS SHOW DECLINES, GROWTH BY LEVELS

At the 257 campuses of state and land-grant universities providing comparable data for 1977 and 1978, total enrollment increased .2 percent. Table 2 shows that at reporting comparable campuses, undergraduate enrollment dropped .5 percent, first-time freshmen dropped 1.7 percent and graduate enrollment dropped .8 percent.

These declines were offset by increases in unclassified and first-professional students at campuses providing comparable data for 1977 and 1978. Table 2 shows that in 1978 unclassified students increased 6.7 percent and first-professional students increased 1.5 percent.

ENROLLMENT OF WOMEN UP, OF MEN DOWN

Enrollment by sex reported by the 257 campuses providing comparable data for 1978 and 1977 (see Table 3 on page 4) showed an increase of almost two percent in the number of women students, with total enrollment up from 1,155,344 to 1,178,219. The enrollment of men declined 1.6 percent, dropping from 1,394,035 to 1,371,660.

Increases of better than seven percent in the enrollment of women were reported by the 257 campuses at the unclassified and first-professional levels. Both undergraduate and graduate levels had increases of under two percent.

The enrollment of men showed decreases of under 3.1 percent at every level except unclassified, which increased by almost five percent.

A complete analysis of enrollment by level, sex and full-time-part-time status shows that women increased their share of the enrollment at almost every level compared with 1977 figures. The two exceptions were (1) part-time first-time freshmen women, where the representation of women in enrollment for the level dropped from 5.4 percent to 4.9 percent of the total, and (2) part-time unclassified, where the drop was only .7 percent, from 45.9 percent in 1977 to 45.2 percent in 1978.

Enrollment by sex, status and level for the 343 member campuses providing data for 1978 shows that women represented 36.9 percent of the undergraduate enrollment, 51.3 percent of the unclassified enrollment, 23.9 percent of the first-professional enrollment and 38.1 percent of the graduate enrollment. (See Table 4 on page 5.)

Enrollments of men and women were more evenly balanced among first-time freshmen than at any other level. Women accounted for 44.6 percent of all first-time freshmen.

The prevalence of women in part-time enrollments continued, with women accounting for a larger share of the part-time enrollment at every level except first-professional. On the other hand, men dominated full-time enrollments at every level.

(The chart to the right shows enrollment for each level, classified by sex and status.)

At the unclassified level, the enrollment of part-time women was large enough to counterbalance the small percentage of full-time women. The result is a higher percentage of women over men at this level. However, at the first-professional level, the enrollment of full-time women was not large enough to bring about an overall rise in the percentage share of women in total enrollments.

FULL-TIME/PART-TIME ENROLLMENTS VARY BY LEVEL

Enrollment by full-time/part-time status varied considerably by level. At the undergraduate level, 81.1 percent of the enrollment was full-time, with 1,929,059 students reported as full-time and 450,538 reported as part-time. Among first-professional students, full-time enrollments constituted almost all of the total. There were 80,374 full-time students, or 96.7 percent of the total, and 2,724 part-time students, accounting for the remaining 3.3 percent.

Graduate enrollment was divided almost equally between full-time and part-time students. There were 223,415 full-time graduate students, making up 50.1 percent of the total, and 222,990 part-time students, accounting for 49.9 percent of the total.

Unclassified enrollments were overwhelmingly part-time, with 177,162 part-time students in this category, constituting 80 percent of the total, and 44,324 full-time students, making up the remaining 20 percent.

EXTENSION ENROLLMENT DIPPED 5.5 PERCENT IN 1978

Degree-credit extension enrollment of 113,186, categorized by level, included 38,331 enrolled in undergraduate programs, 46,769 listed as unclassified, and 28,086 enrolled in graduate programs. An additional 7,391 extension students were not classified by level.

Extension enrollment decreased by 5.5 percent at the 105 campuses which were able to provide comparable data for 1977 and 1978. Total extension enrollment reported by these campuses dipped from 127,208 to 120,190.

Extension enrollment dropped at every level among those institutions included in comparisons. Undergraduate enrollment decreased 2.8 percent from 39,401 to 38,294. Unclassified enrollment was down 7 percent from 50,057 to 46,531, and graduate extension enrollment dipped 6.2 percent from 29,818 to 27,974.

NUMBER OF CAMPUSES REPORTING ENROLLMENT DECREASES IS 46 PERCENT

Approximately 46 percent of the 257 state and land-grant university campuses participating in the fall, 1978 enrollment comparisons showed decreases in their total enrollment.

Forty-nine campuses had decreases of less than 100 students, and 47 reported drops in the 101-500 student range. There were 14 campuses with decreases between 501-1,000 students, and eight campuses with decreases of more than 1,000 students.

The number of campuses reporting drops was as follows: undergraduate, 132; first-time freshmen, 127; unclassified, 85; first-professional, 15 and graduate, 111.

There was a dramatic difference between the number of campuses reporting increases in the enrollment of women and those reporting increases in the enrollment of men. There were only 87 campuses which reported increases in total enrollment for men, while 182 reported increases in total enrollment for women.

This year only one institution, Arizona State University, reported an increase of more than 1,000 women, compared to six institutions in fall, 1977. The number of women at Arizona State University rose 1,579, from 16,106 to 17,685.

Table 7 shows the number of campuses reporting enrollment increases at all levels for both sexes.

TEN LARGEST INSTITUTIONS, CAMPUSES HIGHLIGHTED

State and land-grant universities include most of the largest campuses in the nation. The growth of multi-campus institutions, often encompassing all public colleges and universities within a state, has resulted in the development of many extremely large systems.

In an attempt to look at enrollment both from the perspective of all campuses of an institution and on a campus-by-campus basis, NASULGC has ranked survey participants in two ways. The tables on the following pages list the ten largest institutions and the ten largest campuses participating in the 1978 NASULGC survey.

Rankings of the top ten institutions in total enrollment remained almost the same as in previous years. The University of Illinois moved from tenth to ninth place in 1978, switching places with the University of Maryland. All of the ten largest institutions had enrollments of more than 59,000, compared to 60,000 in 1977.

The 1978 list of the ten largest campuses remained almost the same as last year, although rank order varied considerably. The only newcomer to the list was Pennsylvania State University, University Park. Enrollment for the ten largest campuses in 1978 ranged from 63,223 to 35,298. In 1977 the range was from 64,629 to 35,954.

* * *

In undergraduate enrollment, the ten institutions with the largest enrollments included nine of the ten institutions with the largest total enrollments. Ohio State University (10) completed the listing. (See Tables 8 and 9.)

Nine of the ten campuses listed among the largest in total enrollment were also included in the list of the top ten campuses in undergraduate enrollment. The University of Illinois, Urbana-Champaign (10) was the only addition. The top ten institutions all had undergraduate enrollments of more than 43,000 (compared to 44,000 in 1977) and all the top ten campuses enrolled more than 25,000 undergraduates (the same as in 1977).

The institutions with the largest graduate enrollments included nine of the ten largest institutions in total enrollment. The only exception was the University of Michigan (9). Graduate enrollment for these ten largest institutions ranged from a high of 32,077 at SUNY (compared to 29,632 in 1977) to a low of 11,087 at the University of Minnesota (compared to 11,386 in 1977).

Campuses with the largest graduate enrollments varied considerably in rank order from the top ten campuses in total enrollment, including four which were not on the list. These are Rutgers University, New Brunswick (5), University of Illinois, Urbana-Champaign (7), University of California, Berkeley (8) and University of California, Los Angeles (9).

Five of the ten institutions with the largest first-professional enrollments also appeared on the list of the ten largest institutions. Additional institutions which appeared on this list included: University of Michigan (4), Ohio State University (7), University of Missouri (8), Louisiana State University (9) and Temple University (10). As was the case in 1977, the University of Michigan, Ann Arbor topped the lists of campuses with the largest first-professional and largest graduate enrollments.

The ten institutions with the largest first-time freshmen enrollments remained the same as in 1977, with one exception: Louisiana State University (10) replaced the University of Illinois.

First-time freshmen enrollments varied considerably from other top ten listings, ranging from a high of 30,444 (compared to 30,355 in 1977) to a low of 9,230 (compared to 9,696 in 1977). The ten campuses varied significantly in rank order from 1977, but included seven of the same institutions. Newcomers to the 1978 list were Texas A&M University, College Station (7), University of Minnesota, Twin Cities (9) and Louisiana State University, Baton Rouge (10).

[1]Figures do not include degree-credit extension enrollment.
[2]Figures do not include enrollments for 2 medical centers.

Enrollments among the top ten campuses in first-time freshmen enrollments did not range widely as in other levels. The largest enrollment in this category was 7,703 and the tenth ranked institution had an enrollment of 5,104.

* * *

The institutions with the largest enrollments of women students included nine of the ten institutions with the largest total enrollments, although the rank order differed slightly. The University of Puerto Rico (9) was the only institution listed that was not also included in the list of top ten institutions in total enrollment.

[2]Figures do not include enrollments for 2 medical centers.

Among the ten campuses with the largest enrollments of women in 1978, two were not among the top ten in total enrollment. They are Rutgers University, New Brunswick (8) and Temple University, Philadelphia (10).

* * *

Degree-credit extension enrollment, reported by slightly less than one-third of the NASULGC member institutions, made up a major portion of total enrollment for only a few institutions. Data on extension students showed that the majority of those institutions reporting had extension enrollments of less than 3,000. This year, three new institutions appeared in the top ten list: Utah State University (5), University of Colorado (7) and Wayne State University (8).
